

WHAT HORSES HAVE TAUGHT ME

Horses have taught me a lot. They are always there for me. They they will always be my best friend. I can always yell at them when I am mad but they don't ever yell at me. They taught me to be nice like them and just listen. If people yell at me I try to be like my horse and just sit there and ignore them.

When I am out on trail and far behind they are there to talk to. I am never lonely and they are like a best friend that is always there for me. I can sing as loud and as bad as I want and they don't care. They don't even tell me to stop. I love being with my horse on trail.

At home I have to listen to my parents and at school I have to listen to my teachers. I am the youngest and I have to listen to everyone older even my sister. When I ride my horse they have to listen to me. Which is a lot of fun to be the boss the first time. I still have to be nice and ask nicely and give my horse a chance to listen before I get after her. Just like when my parents ask me to do my chores, if I ignore them they get mad.

My horse is a lot of fun to ride. Sometimes she kicks and bites when I put on a saddle but she is always a fun ride. She taught me to be patient because when I go to catch her it takes a while. She taught me to be careful because of her ticklish spots. She sometimes accidentally steps on my foot and I yell at her but I still like her.

I have done a lot of things with my horse such as riding over 300 miles in competitive trail rides, riding pleasure and contest, driving, and a lot more. My horse has taught me so much. It has even helped me to go to state for horse bowl. I wouldn't have done so well at horse bowl without my horse. I have learned so much from my horse, but she has also taught me.

These are all the things my horse has taught me. She is still teaching me today and every day too. She is really nice about it too. But when she dies I will have to find another horse to learn from. So now I can go outside and learn from her. I hope you liked my report thanks for reading.